Salute to Wartime Sacrifice

Bush, Kerry mark Memorial Day against backdrop of Iraq

ARLINGTON, VA. | President Bush declared Monday that "America is safer" because of its fighting forces while Sen. John Kerry went to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in somber Memorial Day tributes.

"Through our history, America has gone to war reluctantly," said Bush, speaking at Arlington National Cemetery after laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns. "In places like Kabul and Kandahar, in Mosul and Baghdad, we have seen [troops'] decency and their brave spirit," he said.

A charcoal sky and light mist hung over the remembrance as if to underscore the solemnity of Bush's speech, Kerry's visit to the Vietnam monument and a parade along historic Independence Avenue.

It was a day when political rhetoric was somewhat muted, eclipsed here by public tributes and the playing of taps.

Bush did, however, take a moment to praise Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld for "your great leadership." Rumsfeld has heard calls for his resignation in connection with the prisoner abuse scandal in Iraq.

Kerry waited until he got outside the Capital Beltway to resume normal politics, telling an audience in Portsmouth, Va., that Bush "didn't learn the lessons of our generation in Vietnam."

"I believe I can lead us out of Iraq effectively by accomplishing goals we need to accomplish, but without putting our troops at greater risk," he said.

Bush campaign spokesman Steve Schmidt countered, "John Kerry never misses an opportunity to deliver a political attack. Sadly, that even seems to include Memorial Day, a day of remembrance that should be above politics." PETE YOST (AP)

ACTIVISM | Butt Pincher A Chinese anti-smoking activist visited Hong Kong over the weekend on a quest to rid the world of cigarettes — one butt at a time. The Ming Pao Daily News on Sunday ran a picture of activist Zhang Yue preaching about the dangers of smoking while snatching a cigarette from the mouth of an elderly man. The paper said Zhang has visited 69 mainland cities in the past three years, often pilfering cigarettes to make his point. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

SHELL GAME

Apparently, He Is

The alligator snapping turtle doesn't move very much, preferring to stay perfectly still at the bottom of a river until something tasty swims by. The male specimen at the Bronx Zoo is so quiet his name is Izzy A. Live. Izzy is unaccustomed to public spectacle, but on Friday he was wheeled out to have his shell measured. It seems Izzy is considered to have the longest shell of his kind at a North American zoo, according to zoo officials. Izzy, who's an estimated 49 years old and looks prehistoric, came in at 29 1/2 inches of shell length, good enough to hold the title, and 197 pounds, not nearly the record. (AP)

OFFICE SPACE

Closed-Door Policy

The mayor of Darby, Pa., was holed up in her office at the police station and vowed to stay there until Tuesday to prevent a locksmith hired by the Borough Council from locking her out. The reason for the dispute? The council wants Mayor Paula Brown to move her office blocks away so police equipment can be stored where she is now. But the mayor said she can't properly supervised the police from the new digs, maintaining that three court orders specify doing so as her primary responsibility. Brown said she hopes a court will rule Tuesday that she can keep her office where it is. (AP)

GATOR AGLOW

Prickly in Pink

An albino alligator became so excited when he got to Iowa, he turned pink. That's according to officials at Blank Park Zoo in Des Moines, who received the 8-foot-long reptile on Thursday for an exhibit of albino animals. The gator's glow settled down a bit by late Friday, the Des Moines Register reported, but not before the zoo packed in hundreds of schoolchildren to get a glimpse at the newly dubbed "Pinkie." (AP)

MAKING FRIENDS

Personal Grants

An 8-year-old in Mount Carmel, Tenn., became the most popular boy in class when he started handing out $50 bills during a field trip. But he didn't win any gold stars from the police or his mother, who reported the nearly $1,600 in cash stolen from her purse. He handed out half the money before one of his third-grade teachers saw what was happening and stopped him. At last report, about $500 was still missing. (AP)

ANIMAL WATCH

For the Birds

Protesters from various pro-parrot organizations gathered at venues across Britain on Monday to celebrate World Parrot Day, a day they say is meant to call attention to mistreatment of the talkative birds. Jessica Shortland and Gizmo, a blue and yellow macaw, were among the demonstrators who delivered a petition to British Prime Minister Tony Blair, calling for a ban on the world bird trade. # Midwest Surveys Storm Damage

Violent weather blamed for at least 9 deaths

MARENGO, IND. | Residents spent Memorial Day cleaning up and recovering belongings from the wreckage left by a tornado that smashed through town, part of a weekend-long wave of violent weather across the Midwest.

One person was killed in Marengo and eight others died elsewhere, including two killed early Monday in West Virginia and Kentucky.

The Sunday night twister in Marengo destroyed at least 50 homes in the town of 800 people, about 35 miles northwest of Louisville, Ky., said State Police Sgt. Todd Ringle.

He said about 80 percent of the town's homes and businesses had some damage. After generating tornadoes during the weekend, the storm system continued toward the east and south on Monday, producing heavy rain along an arc from Louisiana to New England. More thunderstorms moved across parts of the Great Lakes states.

More than 4 inches of rain fell in parts of southern West Virginia, and one man drowned in Wyoming County, authorities said.

Flooding and mudslides washed out bridges and covered roads in West Virginia, isolating communities throughout several counties. Also on Monday, a 7-year-old girl was killed in Giles, Tenn., when high wind collapsed a wall of her home. At least 21 other people were injured in Tennessee when the line of thunderstorms wrecked homes and flooded streets, officials said.

Another man was killed Sunday in Missouri by a tree that slammed onto his car. On Saturday, high wind was blamed for two deaths in Kansas and three in Missouri.

The weekend storms also caused damage in parts of Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. KIMBERLY HEFLING (AP)

STORM SURGE: Residents of Marengo, Ind., pick through the debris of their homes Monday after a tornado struck on Sunday, one of a string of storms in the Midwest.

Mich. Plane Crash Kills All 3 Aboard

VERMONTVILLE, MICH. | A small plane crashed Monday afternoon in central Michigan, killing the three people aboard, authorities said.

There was no immediate word on what caused the crash of the Lancair plane, which is an aircraft built from a kit, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Tony Molinaro said. (AP)

Beset by Problems, TSA May Shrink

WASHINGTON | The anti-terrorism agency that Congress rushed into existence just weeks after the Sept. 11 attacks to protect America's planes, trains and trucks is shrinking, and could all but fade away.

The Transportation Security Administration has been beset by complaints about its performance, leaving it vulnerable to congressional Republicans who want to reduce the size of government.

After the terrorist attacks, "people were panicked to put in place a massive bureaucracy," said House Aviation Subcommittee Chairman John Mica.

The Florida Republican says the time has come to rethink TSA and cut it back.

Mica and other Republicans want to return all airport security screener jobs to the private sector, where they were before Sept. 11, 2001. If so, the federal screeners would get the first opportunity to apply for the private jobs.

Mica argues that private companies will do a better, more efficient job at the screening that currently is the TSA's primary function.

TSA Deputy Administrator Stephen McHale said he wasn't aware of any plans to change the agency's status as a separate entity. But, he acknowledged recently, "I'm not saying such a plan won't develop." LESLIE MILLER (AP)

Long Rides, Wider Waists

New study links extra time behind the wheel with extra poundage

ATLANTA | A person's weight is affected more by the amount of time they spend in the car than by their income, education or gender, researchers have found.

The more people drive, the more their waistlines expand and the more likely they are to contribute to the nation's obesity epidemic, according to a new study.

The survey of 10,500 metro Atlanta residents found that for every extra 30 minutes commuters drove each day, they had a 3 percent greater chance of being obese than their peers who drove less.

The survey also found that people who lived less than a half mile from shops were 7 percent less likely to be obese than their counterparts who had to drive.

"The more driving you do means you're going to weigh more — the more walking means you're going to weigh less," said Lawrence Frank, associate professor at the University of British Columbia who oversaw the study when he worked at Georgia Tech.

About 91 percent of the people

THE DRIVER'S SEAT: In a new study on obesity, researchers cite a link between the amount of time commuters spent driving and their chances of being overweight.

surveyed said they didn't walk to destinations. Many spent more than an hour each day in their cars.

In the study, which is expected to appear in the June issue of the American Journal of Preventive Medicine, researchers tracked participants' travel behavior and measured their height and weight from 2000 to 2002.

"Most regions look very similar to Atlanta — anything that's built after World War II is pretty much auto-oriented," Frank said. "We need to start to look at the way we're designing our communities ... the collective impact of having to drive everywhere is becoming really large."

Suburban, white men typically weighed about 10 pounds more than men who lived in dense urban areas with shops and services, according to the study, which will be presented Thursday at a national obesity conference in Virginia. DANIEL YEE (AP)

'Bob Quits' Hits D.C. Area

Ad blitz built around one smoker's attempt to kick the habit

WASHINGTON | Prepare to be bombarded with anti-smoking messages. An organization funded in part by a multibillion dollar tobacco settlement is launching a media blitz this month aimed at discouraging young people from picking up the habit and persuading thousands of smokers to quit.

The $1.5 million campaign, called "Bob Quits," is built around a series of 90- to 120-second video vignettes that feature the real life Bob as he prepares to smoke his last cigarette after several unsuccessful attempts to quit.

The 35-year-old father of three from Queens, N.Y., has been smoking for 18 years.

While the entire video Web diary can be viewed on the Internet, plans call for "Bob Quits" messages to be featured in radio and television commercials. Ads also will appear in newspapers and transit signs.

The nonprofit American Legacy Foundation is funded by the District of Columbia and 45 states that signed the $206 billion Multistate Tobacco Settlement with the cigarette industry in 1999. Legacy has produced several campaigns to illustrate the harmful effects of tobacco.

DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

TOBACCO TALLIES

A June anti-smoking media blitz is targeting young people as well as those attempting to quit:

→ Eighty percent of all smokers have their first cigarette before the age of 18; 90 percent begin before age 20.

→ Each day nearly 5,000 young people age 12 to 17 try a cigarette for the first time. Ten percent of middle-school students smoke.

→ In 2000, 70 percent of smokers said they wanted to quit but only 5 percent succeeded in quitting for three months or more.

→ On average, former smokers made eight quit attempts before successfully ending their habit.

Last Widow of Civil War Veteran Dies

MONTGOMERY, ALA. | Alberta Martin, the last widow of a Civil War veteran, died Monday. She was 97.

Martin died at an Enterprise, Ala., nursing home of complications from a heart attack she suffered May 7, said her caretaker, Dr. Kenneth Chancey.

At 18, she met a cab driver named Howard Farrow, and they had a son before Farrow died in a car accident in 1926.

She soon moved with her father and her son to the city of Opp to stay with relatives. Just up the road lived William Jasper Martin, a widower born in Macon County, Ga., in 1845. He enjoyed a $50-a-month Confederate veteran's pension and was looking to get remarried.

The cantankerous 81-year-old man struck up a few conversations with the 21-year-old neighbor and the two were married in a civil ceremony in 1927. Ten months later they had a son.

William Jasper Martin died on July 8, 1931. Two months later, Alberta Martin married her late husband's grandson, Charlie Martin. He died in 1983. (AP)

WHITMAN-WALKER CLINIC

A Training Program for Everyone

Our six-month training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. We start with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increase the distance. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete this program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

Guided Fundraising

The rate of new AIDS cases in Washington, DC is 12 times higher than the national average. The money we raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, housing, and other vital AIDS services – to help keep people with HIV/AIDS alive until there's a cure.

In the past six years, we've helped 14,000 people nationwide raise more than $45 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to support you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.

U.S., Council Split On Iraqi President

Meeting to choose who will fill ceremonial post delayed by differences

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraqi Governing Council members accused American officials Monday of pressuring them to accept Washington's choice for Iraq's new president, prompting a delay in the announcement of a new government to take power from the U.S.-led coalition June 30.

U.N. envoy Lakhdar Brahimi had hoped to complete the selection of the 26-member Cabinet by Monday. However, a Governing Council session to choose a president was postponed until Tuesday, with sharp differences remaining between the council and the coalition.

"I hope it will be taken tomorrow," Governing Council spokesman Hameed al-Kafaei said of the choice of president. "But then again, ... it could take another day or two."

Most council members favor civil engineer Ghazi Mashal Ajil al-Yawer, 45, the current council president. The Americans are backing former foreign minister Adnan Pachachi, 81. Both are Sunni Muslims.

Although most Cabinet posts have been filled, no agreement can be announced until a decision on the presidency. The new government will serve until national elections are held before the end of January.

The tough stand by U.S. Administrator L. Paul Bremer in support of Pachachi was unexpected because the presidency will be a figurehead post. The Americans had signaled they were primarily interested in approving the choice for prime minister — a job that went Friday to Iyad Allawi, a U.S.-backed Shiite.

Pachachi, who fled to the United Arab Emirates after Saddam's Baath Party seized power in 1968, is well connected within the United States and United Nations.

Al-Yawer has been sharply critical of the American occupation, blaming U.S. ineptness for the deteriorating law and order. He also has denounced violence against American and other coalition forces. HAMZA HENDAWI (AP)

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ A car bomb exploded Monday near coalition headquarters, killing four people and wounding 25. U.S. officers said no prominent political figures were in the area and they were uncertain of the target. It was unclear whether it was a suicide attack.

→ In a bid to save a tattered truce with radical cleric Muqtada al-Sadr's militia, Shiite leaders urged Americans to end their "aggressive patrolling" and stay away from holy sites in Najaf and Kufa, Najaf Gov. Adnan al-Zurufi said.

Blast at Mosque in Pakistan Kills 16

Officials suspect Shiites targeted out of revenge

KARACHI, PAKISTAN | A bomb ripped through a Shiite Muslim mosque in Karachi during evening prayers Monday, killing at least 16 people and wounding 38 others. A top Pakistani official said the blast could be revenge for the assassination of a senior Sunni cleric.

Hundreds of Shiite youths rioted after the blast at the Imam Bargah Ali Raza mosque, which came a day after unidentified gunmen killed Nazamuddin Shamzai. Interior Ministry spokesman Abdur Rauf Chaudhry said the bombing "could be a reaction to" Shamzai's slaying.

Monday's explosion was the latest in a series of attacks in Karachi, including two car bombings near the U.S. Consul's residence last week and a May 7 suicide bombing at a Shiite Muslim mosque that killed 20. It was not yet clear if Monday's blast was the work of a suicide bomber.

Police formed a task force to investigate the slaying of Shamzai, a cleric in his 70s who had been a strong supporter of the Taliban regime in Afghanistan. (AP)

Harvard to Help Establish Medical School in Dubai

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES | The United Arab Emirates announced plans Monday to establish a medical education center in Dubai with the help of Harvard Medical School.

The Harvard Medical School Dubai Center will open by 2006 in Healthcare City, a site under construction, according to a statement through the Dubai Press Club.

The center will be located on a 435-acre site in Dubai and will provide postgraduate training.

The dean for international programs at Harvard Medical School, Robert K. Crone, estimates the center eventually will earn between $4 million and $5 million a year.

The Dubai project is Harvard's first overseas medical school branch since a Shanghai, China, campus closed in 1915. (AP)

Iraqi-born architect Zaha Hadid on Monday became the first woman to receive the Pritzker Prize, architecture's most prestigious award. This year's $100,000 award was presented to Hadid at St. Petersburg's Hermitage Museum. The jurors praised her designs for the Rosenthal Contemporary Arts Center in Cincinnati, Ohio; the Vitra fire station in Germany; and a ski jump near Innsbruck, Austria. (AP)

U.N. Court: Liberia's Taylor Not Immune to Prosecution

A U.N.-backed court for Sierra Leone ruled Monday that ousted Liberian leader Charles Taylor is not immune from prosecution for war crimes. Taylor, who fled his own country amid an uprising in August and is in exile in Nigeria, is accused of backing Sierra Leone's rebels in a brutal civil war. The court ruled that Taylor's claim of immunity as a former head of state did not apply because the court is international, not national. Nigeria has agreed not to extradite Taylor. (AP)

5 Drown in Boating Accident

A catamaran overturned on Europe's largest underground lake Monday, drowning five tourists, officials said. The accident took place in the Hinterbrühl grotto, a popular cave featuring a vast, shallow subterranean lake. Twenty-seven people were on the boat when it tipped over, authorities said. Most waded to safety, but the boat's railings formed a cage around others, trapping them, a police official said. (AP)

Militants Still At-Large in Saudi Arabia

KHOBAR, SAUDI ARABIA | Saudi police hunted Monday for three suspected al Qaeda militants who used hostages as human shields to escape after a weekend assault on a housing complex that killed 22 people, mostly foreign oil industry workers.

The attackers fled Khobar to nearby Dammam, a police official said Monday. A fourth militant — described as the ringleader — was captured Sunday after commandos raided the upscale Oasis compound, where gunmen had taken dozens of foreigners hostage a day earlier.

A statement Sunday attributed to al Qaeda's chief in the region said the attack was punishment for the kingdom's oil dealings with the United States. (AP)

Mad-Cow-Immune Bovine Developed For Medicinal Use

TOKYO | Japanese and U.S. scientists have genetically engineered a bovine embryo that is resistant to the deadly mad cow disease and they plan to breed several of the cows to use them to make medicines to treat human diseases, an official said Monday.

The embryo was implanted in a cow and is expected to be born early next year, said Kumi Nakano, spokeswoman for Kirin, which conducted the research with U.S.-based biotechnology company Hematech.

The cows will not be bred to produce mad-cow-free meat. Instead, blood and milk extracted from them will be used in drugs to fight pneumonia, hepatitis C and arthritis, Nakano said. They should be available in the United States by 2013, she added. (AP)

Aristide Feted on Arrival in S. Africa

After months, deposed Haitian leader finds a 'temporary home'

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA | Ousted Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was welcomed to South Africa on Monday in a style reserved for visiting heads of state, ending a three-month search for what he maintains will be a "temporary home" in exile.

Before leaving Jamaica on Sunday, Aristide insisted he was still the elected president of Haiti and vowed to return.

President Thabo Mbeki embraced Aristide and his wife, Mildred, as they stepped from a South African presidential jetliner at Johannesburg International Airport. They were accompanied by their two daughters and bodyguards. Mbeki then introduced the couple to a long line of Cabinet members, diplomats and representatives of the

Aristide

African Union and U.S. Congressional Black Caucus.

Aristide fled Haiti on Feb. 29 as rebels approached the capital, Port-au-Prince. He later claimed he was pushed out by the United States, a charge Washington denies.

South Africa says Aristide and his entourage can live in Pretoria, the capital, at government expense until it is safe for them to return to Haiti — an offer the political opposition has protested. (AP)

No Motive Yet in Childrens' Deaths

Suspects in Baltimore murders to have bail hearing on Tuesday

BALTIMORE | As prosecutors begin presenting their case Tuesday against two male relatives accused in the gruesome murder of three children, police continue to search for a motive.

Irv Bradley, the Baltimore police detective in charge of the investigation, said police are exploring every lead as they try to determine why Ricardo Espinoza and his sister, Lucero Quezada, both 9; and their 10-year-old cousin, Alexis Quezada, were murdered Thursday in the apartment where they lived. One child had been beheaded and the others nearly decapitated.

A bail review was set for Tuesday afternoon for Adan Espinoza Canela, 17, and Policarpio Espinoza, 22. They were each charged with three counts of first-degree murder and were being held without bail.

Bradley said Canela was a butcher at a Baltimore slaughterhouse and Espinoza worked for the family's food business, which sold Mexican food at construction sites.

According to the charging documents, Espinoza, who was described as the uncle of two of the slain children, told police that Canela, his cousin, was in the apartment with the children for about 40 minutes. Canela said he had been "playing with the children," the documents said.

Officials found a butcher knife near the crime scene and a blood-stained towel and shirt at the home of the two suspects, according to charging documents. FOSTER KLUG (AP)

WWII Veterans Parade Through D.C.

WASHINGTON | America's World War II veterans took to the streets Monday, marching in a Memorial Day parade with high school and military bands, floats and veterans of other conflicts who came to honor them.

It was a pulsating sequel to Saturday's solemn dedication of a new memorial to the thinning ranks of World War II veterans.

Veterans units came from all 50 states and some U.S. allies in the war against Japan and Germany. They marched up Independence Avenue, ending a short distance from the World War II Memorial.

Harry Lynd, of Montgomeryville, Pa., said it was important to be in the parade.

"We've got to," said the 80-year-old Army Air Corps veteran. "How much longer do I have?"

Italy Hates File-sharing

LAW | Italy's parliament has passed one of the world's toughest laws aimed at fighting illegal file-sharing and other Internet piracy, with prison time among the penalties.

The law calls for up to three years in prison for using the Internet illegally for commercial purposes. Such offenses include selling content for which the vendor does not hold the intellectual rights.

Fines for infringements run as high as $300,350, though smaller fines of up to $1,250 would be imposed for simply downloading copyright works for personal use.

Service Entrance Open

People leave their wireless networks vulnerable to attack

WI-FI | With a laptop perched in the passenger seat of his Toyota 4Runner and a special antenna on the roof, Mike Outmesguine ventured off to sniff out wireless networks between Los Angeles and San Francisco. He got a big whiff of insecurity.

While his 800-mile drive confirmed that the number of wireless networks is growing explosively, he also found that only a third used basic encryption — a key security measure. In fact, in nearly 40 percent of the networks not a single change had been made to the gear's wide-open default settings.

The makers of Wi-Fi routers, access points and other gadgets privately say that as many as 80 percent of home users don't bother to enable basic encryption or other protections against connection theft, eavesdropping and network invasion.

Companies that sell Wi-Fi products want their hardware to be simple and interoperable. At the same time, they want to keep support calls and returns low, so they turn off security by default.

Even knowledgeable consumers find it frustrating to set up security. It can involve punching in dozens of characters as the passphrase for each connected device, and navigating screens filled with a dizzying set of acronyms for encryption and authentication. Typically, there isn't much explanation about what they are and why they're needed.

Some manufacturers are beginning to tout security features as a selling point.

The Wi-Fi Alliance, an industry group that certifies Wi-Fi-labeled gear, has posted educational videos on its Web site and recommends that vendors use automated setup tools in their products. But it has stopped short of mandating specific interfaces, said Frank Hanzlik, the group's managing director.

Nutritional Spritz

VITAMINS | An increasing array of products promises that a few spritzes a day can get more vitamins into the bloodstream than tablets or capsules, which must dissolve in the stomach before being absorbed by the small intestine. The mist is readily absorbed by tissues beneath the tongue or lining the cheeks, the manufacturers say.

The sprays, which run about $12.95 for an 11-day supply (four spritzes twice daily), are part of a small but expanding niche in the vitamin industry, which sees a market for more palatable ways to deliver better nutrition.

Experts in pharmacology and biochemistry say there's no proof that vitamin sprays are absorbed better than pills. Nor is there proof that taking smaller doses of vitamins several times a day makes you any healthier than downing that once-daily multivitamin at breakfast.

"At present, the best way to take vitamins is in food or in the traditional type of oral supplements," said Burton Kallman, science

Yes, it bases its calorie estimates on those factors. Because it draws on this rather crude data, the calorie number should be used only as an estimate. Don't assume that the 249 calories it records really means you burned 249 calories. But if you burn 500 next time using the same HRM, you've doubled your calorie burn.

The only ways to really calculate calorie burn involve expensive, complicated lab tools. A simpler tool, called Body Gem, will estimate how many calories you burn off as you rest. It calculates your metabolic rate by taking output from your breath. You can get this done at Giant pharmacies and some health clubs and sports doctors offices for around $75.

Syracuse Dashes Navy's Title Hopes

Mids lose 14-13 heartbreaker in championship

COLLEGE LACROSSE | Syracuse won its ninth NCAA lacrosse championship, getting five assists from Mike Powell and overcoming a gritty effort by Navy in a 14-13 victory Monday in Baltimore.

In a game that featured 10 ties and five lead changes, Syracuse (15-2) used a three-goal run late in the fourth quarter to go up 14-12. Ian Dingman scored for Navy with 40 seconds left, but the Orange held on to earn their third title in five years.

Brian Nee had three goals for Syracuse, which also won the title in 2000 and 2002.

Jon Birsner had two goals and three assists for Navy (15-3), playing in only its second title game and vying for its first NCAA lacrosse title. The second-seeded Midshipmen were the sentimental choice, especially on Memorial Day with the country at war, but the fourth-seeded Orange prevailed in part because of their experience in big games.

Powell, a senior, was voted the Most Outstanding Player in the tournament. Powell's third assist, on a goal by Steve Vallone, put the Orange ahead 8-7 early in the third quarter. Birsner then tied it, but Syracuse used successive goals by Brian Crockett and Alex Zink to take a 10-8 lead into the final period.

The Midshipmen battled back, setting the stage for the exciting finish. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

BY THE NUMBERS: Paid attendance for Monday's game in Baltimore was 43,898 — the largest crowd ever to watch the NCAA men's lacrosse championship game. (AP)

AT A LOSS: Navy's Tommy Wallin (26), stands with teammates after losing 14-13 in the NCAA Championship lacrosse game to Syracuse on Monday in Baltimore.

O's Hit Parade Continues in Boston

BASEBALL | Rodrigo Lopez had his best game as a starter this season and B.J. Surhoff had four of Baltimore's 16 hits, including a 310-foot homer that helped the Orioles beat the Boston Red Sox 13-4 Monday.

Lopez (4-2) allowed one run on four hits and two walks, striking out seven in 5 1/3 innings. It was his third start since being promoted from the bullpen May 20. He allowed 11 runs in 9 2/3 innings in his previous two outings after posting a league-leading 0.33 ERA as a reliever.

Rodrigo Lopez struck out seven Red Sox.

It was the sixth consecutive game that Baltimore, which leads the AL in batting, has collected at least 13 hits. Melvin Mora had four RBIs and three hits, including a homer, and Brian Roberts three hits, including a bases-clearing double in the seven-run sixth inning that broke open the game.

Boston's Derek Lowe (4-5) allowed seven runs, eight hits and four walks in five-plus innings, failing to strike out a batter and losing for the fourth time in his last five decisions. JIMMY GOLEN (AP)

Ax Could Soon Fall on High-Priced NFL Stars

PRO FOOTBALL | Beginning Tuesday, Kurt Warner, Eddie George, Rich Gannon, Larry Allen and other aging, high-priced stars are likely to become available simply because they're aging and high-priced.

On June 1, teams can cut veterans who are under contract and spread the salary cap hit over two years.

Others expected to be seeking new teams include Browns quarterback Tim Couch; Steelers linebacker Jason Gildon; Packers cornerback Mike McKenzie; Redskins linebacker Jeremiah Trotter; and 49ers safety Zach Bronson.

In recent years, the Patriots have been adept at mining the second wave of free agency for help. They picked up Antowain Smith and Roman Phifer,

Buffy Gets Schooled

TV's vampire slayer begets a virulent strain of scholarship

ACADEMICS | It's tough for scholars to be taken seriously when their subject is a TV show about a California blonde fighting evil in a high school built on a gateway to hell. Particularly when the title is as campy as "Buffy the Vampire Slayer."

But enough professors and writers study the comedic drama and its spinoff, "Angel," to hold an academic conference in Nashville, Tenn.

Buffyologists from as far away as Singapore presented 190 papers on topics ranging from "slayer slang" to "postmodern reflections on the culture of consumption" to "Buffy and the new American Buddhism."

DECONSTRUCT THIS: Gellar inspires Ph.D.s on the semiotics of pointyness.

There was even a self-conscious talk by David Lavery, an English professor at Middle Tennessee State University, on Buffy studies "as an academic cult."

Lavery and Rhonda Wilcox, a professor at Gordon College in Georgia, co-hosted the conference and are known as the "father and mother" of Buffy studies. They acknowledged they have endured a lot of ridicule from colleagues, but said that's part of the topic's allure.

"It's a badge of honor," said Wilcox. "The main characters are outsiders. Others are looking at them funny, but they know they're doing the right thing so they do it anyway."

College courses across the globe are devoted to the show, which starred Sarah Michelle Gellar in the title role and was canceled last year after seven seasons. About a dozen scholarly books on Buffy have been written, including one from the Oxford University Press coming out next year.

Jana Riess, a religious book editor for Publishers Weekly, said she has received tremendous response to her book "What Would Buffy Do? A Vampire Slayer as Spiritual Guide."

She said she first got "sucked" into the show when she was pregnant and up late one night. "I was so entertained, and then I was embarrassed that I was so entertained."

"But then some of the best conversations I had about spiritual and moral issues were sparked by scenes from 'Buffy,' like what happens after we die and whether the needs of one should outweigh the needs of the many." KARIN MILLER (AP)

Felix Goes Astray

MUSIC | You'll have to put on your thinking cap tight if you want to enjoy "Devin Dazzle and The Neon Fever" (Emperor Norton), a new album from remix specialist Felix Da Housecat.

It requires a thorough background in dance and 1980s music in order to see where it's coming from and where it purports to take music in the future.

It never quite gets there.

Felix has done remix work for artists such as Madonna, Garbage and New Order over his 20 years in the business, so it's no shock that he finds true value in '80s-esque themes and sounds. "Devin Dazzle" is full of buzzing synthesized sounds and crashing guitar work. The result is an interesting experiment that falls well short of pure entertainment.

The "electroclash" style has been popular among DJs lately. But it's rarely heard even in clubs; it's all nuance, all reflection on others' past material while carrying little substance of its own — a sound that's hardly substantive.

"Devin Dazzle" is Felix's best track here, with its over-synthesized break-beat style. The listener can grasp this. It's slower than the other songs, but has twice the energy and purpose. RON

The End of Harry?

FAMOUS LAST WORDS | Harry Potter may never grow up.

Daniel Radcliffe, who stars as the schoolboy wizard, said Friday that Harry may die in the last book of J.K. Rowling's magical series.

"I'm going to be really unpopular for saying this about Harry, but I've always had the suspicion — with everything that's going on — that he might die," Radcliffe, 14, told a news conference to promote the third film of Rowling's series, "Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban," which opens June 4.

Rowling has remained silent about Harry's fate in the seventh and final book. But with each new installment, Rowling reveals more connections between the character and his archenemy, the evil wizard Lord Voldemort.

"Harry and Voldemort have the same core in them, we get to see that in the fourth film," Radcliffe said. "The only way Voldemort could die is if Harry dies as well."

The pair have similar powers, and Voldemort has been unable to kill Harry.

Rowling has hinted in the past that Harry may not survive. Asked whether she would write books about the character when he reaches adulthood, she replied: "You have to wait and see whether he survives to be a grown-up." (AP)

In a moment of candor, Harry Potter (Daniel Radcliffe) predicted his own demise.

Last Course for 'Soul Food'

Showtime decided it was best “to go out on top with high ratings and high-quality storytelling,” said series Executive Producer Tracey

“To not access those characters and that culture in a dramatic form is just stupid,” he said. JANICE RHOSHALLE LITTLEJOHN (AP)

SISYPHEAN TASK
LAPD (10 p.m., ABC) This special edition of "Prime Time," hosted by Peter Jennings, focuses on former New York police chief William J. Bratton's efforts to stem Los Angeles' horrific crime rate. "LAPD" goes on patrol in South Central, a 10-square-mile area that's home to 65 dif-

SUMMERLAND (8 p.m., WB) Ava (Lori Loughlin), an ambitious single woman with a gorgeous California beach house, becomes an instant mother when her sister and brother-in-law are killed in a car accident and leave her three kids. That makes this new seaside soap a party of four. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Executive

DEPUTY CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER
Immediate Availability

Virginia Railway Express (VRE), headquartered in Alexandria, Virginia is seeking an experienced and skilled Deputy Chief Executive Officer. The VRE is a commuter railroad with an annual budget of $80 million serving Northern Virginia with 32 daily trains.

The position directs, administers, and coordinates the activities of the VRE in support of policies, goals, and objectives established by the Chief Executive Officer and the Operations Board by performing the following duties personally or through subordinate managers.

- Guides and directs management in the development, promotion, and financial aspects of VRE's services

- Directs the preparation of short-term and long range plans based on broad goals and objectives

- Oversees directors and managers who direct department activities that implement the VRE's service and policies

- Ensures that organization activities are carried out in compliance with CEO, local, state, and federal regulations and laws governing business operations

- Creates the structure and processes, which are necessary to manage the VRE's current activities and project growth

Since the position is "hands on", practical experience in organizational administration in the public sector is preferred and necessitates that the incumbent must understand in-depth the wide range of financial, technical and regulatory issues associated with train operations and facilities construction.

Interested candidates must have a Master's degree or equivalent; with four to ten year's related experience. Extensive transportation experience and work in the public sector preferred. Incumbent must be competent, mature leader who will develop the capacities of the organization. Incumbent must possess superior analytical judgment and communications skills with excellent presentation ability.

VRE is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Background checks are performed on all new employees. Job description accessible on our website: www.vre.org. Due to a surge in employment submissions, no inquiring phone calls will be accepted in response to this ad. Salary commensurate with qualifications and experience. Interested candidates should fax, mail or e-mail a cover letter, resume, and three verifiable/confidential references by COB June 14, 2004 to:

UNWELCOME

The 'Real' Celebrities Are Resenting You Now

He banged, they cheered. WILLIAM HUNG butchered "Take Me Out To The Ball Game" during the seventh-inning stretch of Sunday's matchup between the Toronto Blue Jays and Texas Rangers, much to the delight of 22,225 at Toronto's SkyDome. The "American Idol" reject shrugged off a brief smattering of boos and belted out the baseball classic off-key while fans egged him on. Hung's presence brought a gaggle of media usually indifferent to baseball to the game, including staff from Rolling Stone magazine. A team official said more media credentials were issued Sunday than on opening day. (AP)

Prince Farming

PRINCE WILLIAM and his dad appeared for reporters as they inspected a royal herd of cows at the Duchy Home Farm in Gloucestershire on Saturday. Wills is reportedly keen to work in farming but he said that joining the armed forces "would be a very important thing to do." He laughed when a photographer brushed against an electric fence and let out a squeal. (AP)

Long ago, children, singers had a fearsome, strange quality called "talent."

HARSH TRUTHS

Say It Ain't So, Linda

LINDA RONSTADT says today's music industry values sex appeal more than talent. "It puts a huge amount of pressure on kids" who are aspiring performers, said Ronstadt, 57, whose singing career began in the 1960s. "If you are someone like Beyonce who happens to be gorgeous and talented, well, great. But there are a lot of people who are not paid attention to because they don't look like a fashion model," she told the New York Daily News. (AP)

RACEGOERS

Oh Yeah, There Were Also Some Surprisingly Fast Cars

MORGAN FREEMAN drove the pace car. Jessica Simpson sang the national anthem. ASHLEY JUDD was there to see her husband, Indy 500 driver Dario Franchitti. Television host David Letterman co-owns the team that had the winning driver, Buddy Rice. Some of the celebrities at the Indianapolis 500 had local roots. Letterman and Rupert Boneham of "Survivor" fame are Indiana natives. Also attending the race: New York Giants quarterback Jesse Palmer, recently breaking hearts on "The Bachelor." (AP)

WEDDINGS

And Jennifer Love Hewitt Danced With Mormon Julie

Actor SCOTT WOLF of the former television series "Party of Five" has tied the knot with Kelley Limp of "The Real World: New Orleans." The two exchanged vows in a traditional wedding ceremony Saturday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Fayetteville, Ark., Limp's hometown. Limp, 27, now works in television marketing in Los Angeles. The couple met through an unidentified mutual friend in New York City, they said. (AP)

TO THE EDITOR

TO FRIDAY'S letter-writer Thembi Finch, I can only say, "Amen!" It's time to wake up and realize it is neither our God-given right to fritter away gasoline cruising around in SUVs, nor to delude ourselves that gas prices will come down.

While more supplies may be found, the rising economies of India, China and other countries mean an increased demand for those resources. Soon, we will long for the good old days of cheap $2-a-gallon gasoline.

—KEVIN ROST
Washington, D.C.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE watching a cicada ride from Friendship Heights to Van Ness on the shoulder of a sleeping Metro rider to launch a conversation among five complete strangers. As a D.C. metropolitan resident, born and raised on the Red Line, I never cease to smile when a diverse group of people observe something noteworthy or funny, and then continue to ride and chat together like old friends.

It's a shame people aren't this friendly to others more often — with or without cicadas as a talking point.

—RACHEL BANOV

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Don't let a negative outlook keep you from moving forward. Do everything you can to build and maintain momentum.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You'll be most content making efforts to please others. Domestic activities bring you the most satisfaction — and an opportunity to socialize.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Your personal power is on the rise, and you should be able to fashion a dramatic rise from your current position in no time at all. Start now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — A random approach is not for you. You'll want to have every move planned with great care, minimizing the chances of an accident.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Good luck and good timing work in your favor — but nothing can take the place of increased effort on your part. Don't ease up yet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — It's up to you to provide others with certain needs. Never fear, your efforts will not go unrecognized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You're not likely to be as interested in the performance of your duties as you are in the quiet study of your own motives and methods.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your luck will increase, but this does not mean you should throw caution to the wind. You should play it safer than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Now is no time for you to sit back and relax and let opportunities pass you by. You have many choices to make, and one or two may surprise you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — This is a good day to restate your commitment to a project or a person in simpler, more direct terms. Let others know what you're up to.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — This is a good day to tabulate recent earnings and expenditures to formulate a new and improved cash-flow strategy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may be unusually harsh when it comes to other people's feelings, but during evening hours someone is sure to penetrate your shell.

LIVE ONLINE

Sesame Street

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Sesame Street's ELMO and ANNA E. HOUSLEY-JUSTER, assistant content director for the children's program, were online Friday and talked about the long-running PBS series.

When "Sesame Street" started, Elmo was not yet on the program. When did he make his debut? What is the reason behind his appeal to young children?

HOUSLEY-JUSTER: He started on the show in 1980. He's very positive, so children get that from him. He's very curious and always asking questions, which is what a 2- and 3-year-old does to find out more information about the world.

Elmo and Sesame Street have been popular for years and yet have remained fresh and with the times. What is the key to keeping the show fresh and progressive without alienating the audience?

HOUSLEY-JUSTER: We are constantly paying attention to the needs of preschoolers. We recognize that they have different needs today than they may have had years ago and we remain dynamic as to what is popular and what's happening around the kids today.

Recently we had Dr. Phil and we have a parody now called Dr. Feel. We get the adults to enjoy watching with the kids. We remain dynamic with the look of the show as well in terms of bringing in computer-generated animation.

Is it difficult to play the piano with only six fingers?

ELMO: Elmo has four fingers on each hand, which means he has eight fingers. No, it is not hard playing the piano with eight fingers!

Elmo, you're too young to be this old. You're as old as you feel. How old do you feel?

ELMO: Elmo's mommy says that he's 3½ going on 42.
